The first part of the report deals with the general situation in Bangladesh in 1972-73. It describes the extent of the floods, the damage to crops and property, and the loss of life and livestock. It also discusses the impact of the floods on the economy and the social conditions of the people.

The second part of the report deals with the specific effects of the floods on different regions of Bangladesh. It discusses the impact on the rice-growing areas, the coastal areas, and the hill tracts. It also discusses the impact on the different social classes of the population.

The third part of the report deals with the government's response to the floods. It discusses the relief operations, the reconstruction work, and the measures taken to prevent future floods. It also discusses the role of the different agencies involved in the relief work.
