Your Additional Comments

The name of the institution, city, and country should not be given in the title, summary, and keywords of the study. Keywords should be arranged as two words maximum each.

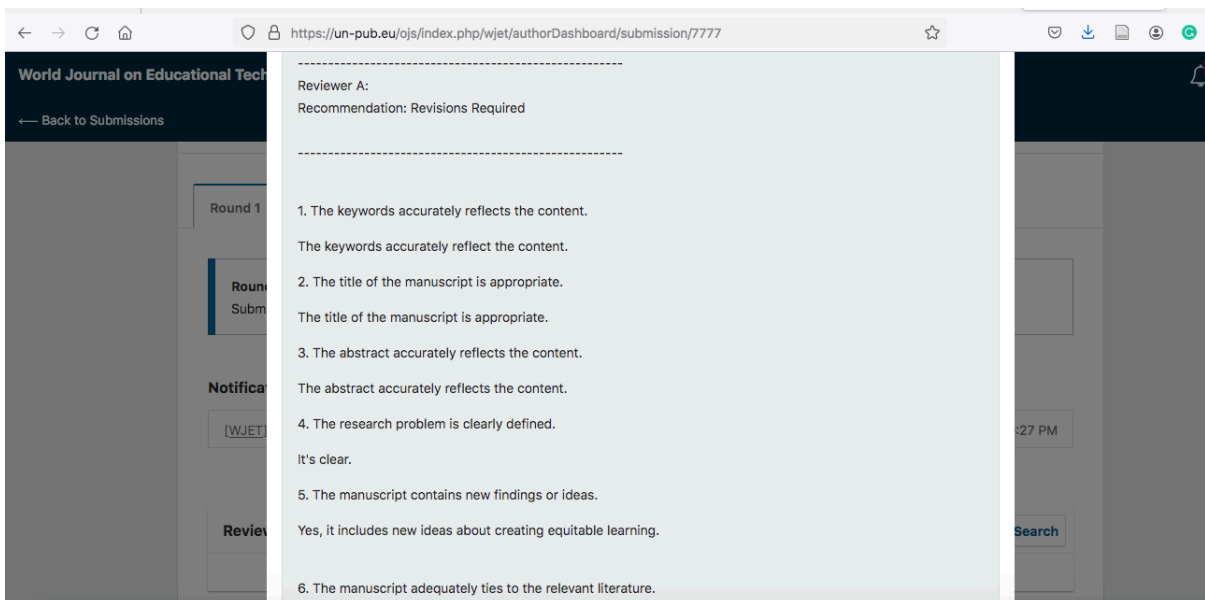

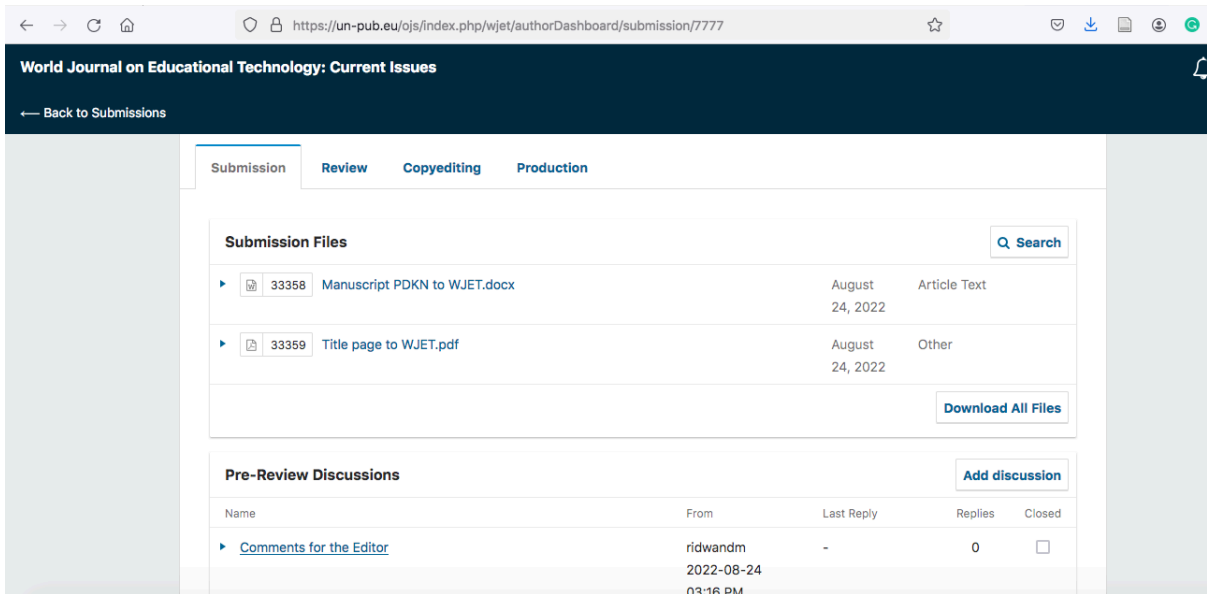

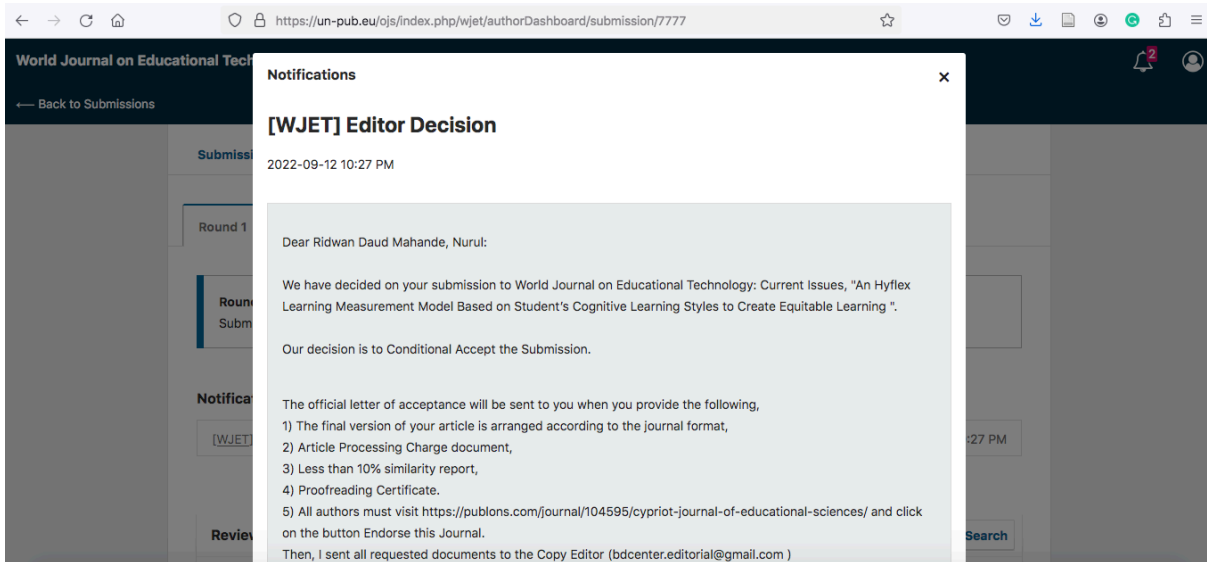

The problem situation of the study is presented clearly and understandably. In the theoretical background part, the literature related to the basics of the study is given. To make the study more understandable, research questions can be added, and the findings can be presented in parallel. The method, findings, and conclusion part of the study are in a very good structure.

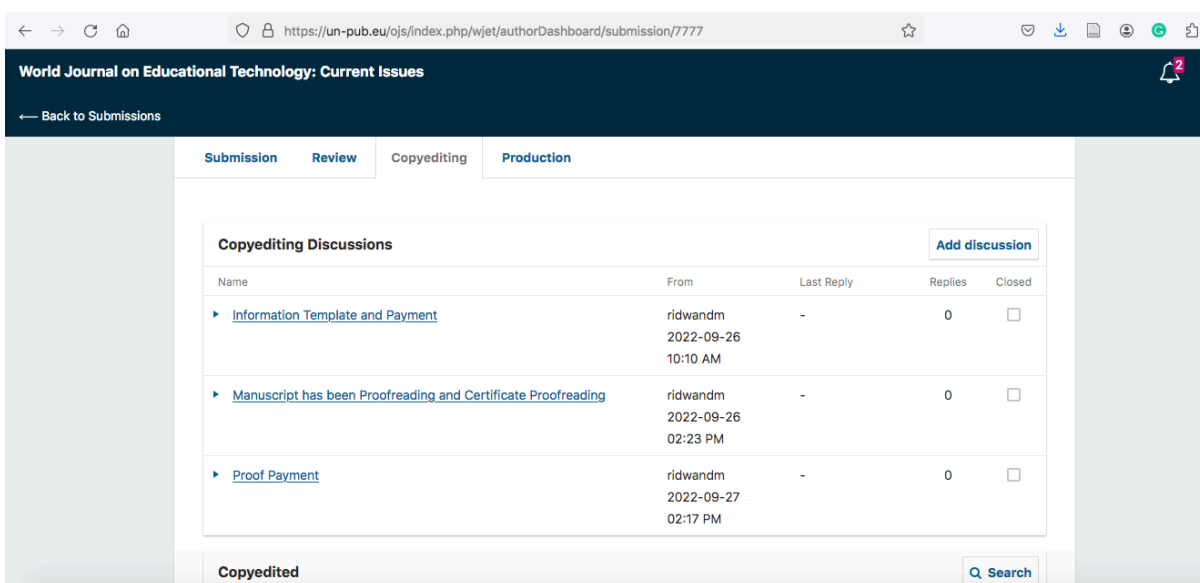

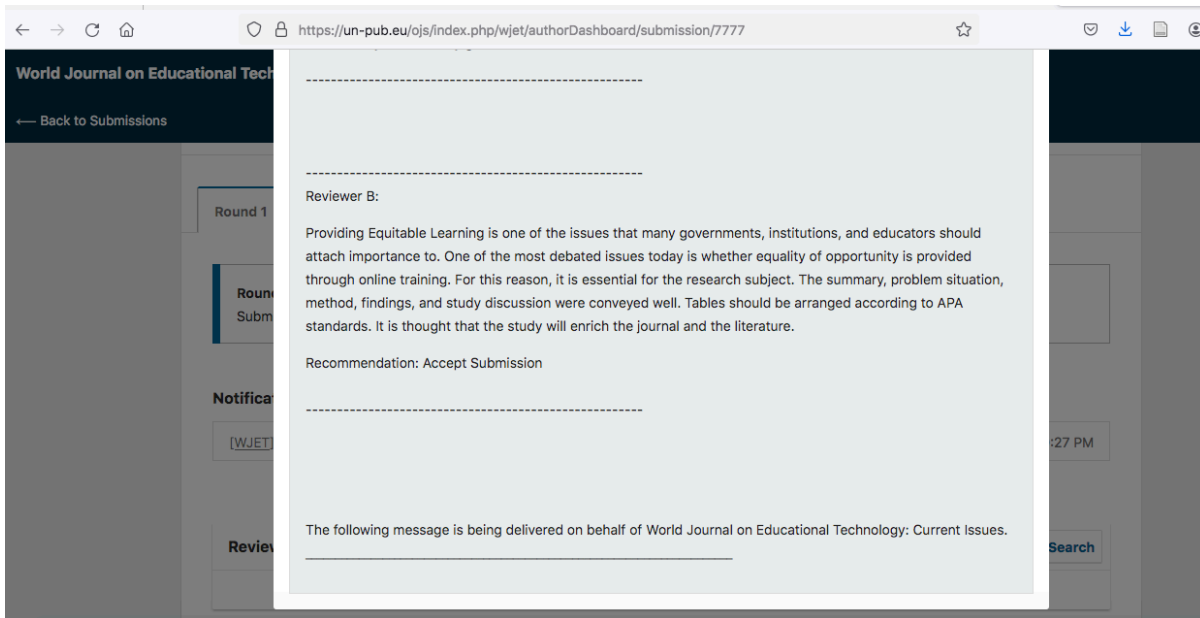

Reviewer B:

Providing Equitable Learning is one of the issues that many governments, institutions, and educators should attach importance to. One of the most debated issues today is whether equality of opportunity is provided through online training. For this reason, it is essential for the research subject. The summary, problem situation, method, findings, and study discussion were conveyed well. Tables should be arranged according to APA standards. It is thought that the study will enrich the journal and the literature.

Dear Editor in Chief

Thank you for publishing my article vol 14 no 5 2022.

I want to correct the title of the article that you have published, even though the title in the last proofreading result is not what you published.

Our title reads:

"A Hyflux learning measurement model....."

Should be A HyFlex learning measurement model...

So the correct one is A HyFlex learning, not Hyflux learning.

Please correct the title and the part you have changed to Hyflux
